

Amy Humphery

About Me:

I am originally from Blairsville, PA which is a small town one hour south of Pittsburgh. I grew up on a farm and raised every farm animal you can think of from cows to chickens. When I turned 18, I decided to attend Saint Vincent College in Latrobe PA. Not even into a year of attendance, I fell in love with the man who is now my children's father. He asked me to move to Annapolis, MD (his hometown) when I was 20. After I moved, I transferred to The Art Institute where I eventually earned my Bachelors Degree in Graphic Design. I spent a few years as an Intern for

"What's Up Annapolis" magazine while also working a full time position at a Collision Automotive Facility. After years of hard effort, I decided to focused on my career as a service writer for the Collision Shop. After 5 years in Maryland, I married the love of my life and had two children. Right after Jaxon was born, my husband was killed in a motorcycle accident. After a year of trying to heal and figure out what to do with my life, I reconnected with Robbie whom I had worked with previously in the Collision Automotive Industry. After months of dating, we decided to move to Colorado. We moved once and fail to plant our feet so after a few more years of hard work in Maryland we tried again and Georgetown became our forever home. The warm welcoming and friendly people just made me so happy that I decided to take this leap. Robbie and I spent the first few years in Colorado working for several Collision Automotive Shops. I was promoted to manager at Caliber Collision in Silverthorne early 2019, but after months of long hours and dedication of turning that shop around, I was exhausted and needed a break. Robbie and I decided to take a hiatus from our careers and travel with our kids. Aside from Covid, it has been an amazing summer making lots of memories.

Platform Statement:

I have a strong interest in making a difference for our children. I want to help in anyway possible to make sure their future is bright. School is such an important role in a child's life and we have the opportunity to help them grow to be the better version of ourselves. Whatever I can to help them thrive in their educational experience is something that I will take pride in. I have two children who attend Georgetown Community School. Brookyn is in 3rd grade and Jaxon is in 1st grade. I hope to do my part to help strengthen this school by providing the best opportunities for our children.